

NJ Update 4/04:

More faith community groups are becoming involved in this issue. We've received a growing number of requests for talks to religious groups about bullying, two books about bullying 'as a spiritual crisis' has been published recently, the first as far as we know. And in Cranford (and perhaps other towns of which we're not aware), the Interfaith Clergy Council has begun a town-wide campaign, called 'Cranford Cares About Bullying' (name used with the permission of the state's NJ Cares About Bullying campaign).
